Schepens, J., Dijkstra, T., & Grootjen, F. (2011). Distributions of cognates in Europe as based on Levenshtein distance. Bilingualism: Language and Cognition.

Part 1: Stimulus Materials from Dijkstra, Miwa, Brummelhuis, Sappelli, and Baayen (2010)

The following file contains the cognates and non-cognates provided by Dijkstra, Miwa, Brummelhuis, Sappelli, and Baayen (2010), as well as their orthographic similarity ratings (O ratings), based on the judgment of bilingual participants. We have added the computed orthographic similarity (O similarity) measure, based on the normalized Levenshtein distance, and the number of meanings shared between each pair of items.

The semantic relation (S relation) for the Dutch-English translation pair is either a unique relation (a) or the first of multiple relations (b or c). If a semantic relation was not found in the linguistic database, 'NA' (not available) is given.

Part 2: Stimulus Materials from Tokowicz, Kroll, de Groot, and van Hell (2002)

The following file contains the cognates and non-cognates provided by Tokowicz, Kroll, de Groot, and van Hell (2002), as well as their orthographic similarity ratings (O ratings) and their semantic similarity ratings (S ratings), based on the judgment of bilingual participants. We have added the computed orthographic similarity (O similarity) measure, based on the normalized Levenshtein distance, and the number of meanings shared between each pair of items. Note that this number of meanings is more differentiated than that in Tokowicz et al., because for ambiguous words multiple shared semantic relations are taken into account.

The semantic relation (S relation) for the Dutch-English translation pair is either a unique relation (a) or the first of multiple relations (b or c). If a semantic relation was not found in the linguistic database, 'NA' (not available) is given.
