

Brian Altman, PhD, Education Coordinator, HJF, National Center for Disaster Medicine and Public Health

Brian A. Altman serves as the Education Coordinator of the National Center for Disaster Medicine and Public Health. Dr. Altman is invested in researching and establishing practices, methods and tools for adult learning in disaster medicine and public health education and training.

Dr. Altman completed his Ph.D. in Urban Education, with a Specialization in Adult and Continuing Education, at the University of Wisconsin-Milwaukee. His doctoral work included a specific focus on the field of Human Resource Development. During his doctoral studies, he taught a course on Coordination of Staff Development and Training Programs.

His corporate work experience includes college recruiting and corporate/academic partnership programming to benefit student career development. He also provided career development counseling and training in career services positions at Northwestern University, Georgetown University, and Roosevelt University.

Dr. Altman received a Bachelor of Science in Education and Social Policy from Northwestern University and a Master of Arts in Community Counseling from Loyola University Chicago.