1 Quality Checks

1.1 Differential attrition

Our preregistration included tests for two types of differential attrition: attrition between the wave 1 and wave 2 surveys, and attrition from the web sample. The second type of attrition is potentially concerning because Pulse is a dynamic panel, with users opting in and out over time. YouGov cannot force people to remain on Pulse over the course of any study, including ours.

For both types of attrition, we conducted two tests. First, we tested for differences in the percentage of respondents who dropped out of the data by examining the treatment's average effect on completing the wave 2 survey and on dropping out of the browsing data. We find no evidence that the treatment affected the overall rate of attrition.

Table SI-1: Difference in mean attrition from web sample by treatment group.

Second, we examined whether treatment affected the relationship between attrition and our pre-treatment covariates (including browsing behavior). We fit two linear models: one that uses all covariates to predict attrition, and a second that interacts treatment with each covariate (listed below in Table SI-10). We then conducted F-tests to examine whether the interactions help predict attrition.

1.2 Differential breakoff

During the review process, one of the reviewers noted another possible source of differential attrition: differential breakoff during the wave 1 survey due to the extra time and effort required to complete the perspective-taking intervention. Although our survey vendor does not usually provide data on incomplete responses, we obtained data on subjects who broke off and adapted the strategy that we preregistered for differential attrition between waves 1 and 2, and for differential attrition from the browsing data.

First, we conducted the same two tests described above in the differential attrition section (Appendix 1.1). We find evidence that our treatment caused more breakoff than occurred in the control condition (Table SI-6). About 98.8 percent of control subjects who reached the final pre-treatment question completed the survey, compared with 95.0 percent of treatment subjects (difference = 3.8, s.e. = 0.7).

Table SI-5: Difference in mean breakoff during wave 1 by treatment group.

	Model 1
Constant	0.047 (0.006)
Treatment	0.024* (0.010)
Adj. R <sup>2</sup>	0.002
Num. obs.	2185

** $p < 0.01$ ; * $p < 0.05$

To examine whether treatment affected the characteristics of respondents who broke off, we examined the F-test for the model  $Z_i = \alpha + \sum_k \beta_k X_{ik} + \epsilon_i$ , where  $k$  indexes covariates  $X_k$ . We find no evidence of differential breakoff on observables.

Table SI-6: F-test for heterogeneity in wave 1 breakoff.

Res.Df	RSS	Df	Sum of Sq	F	Pr(>F)
70	17.175	59	13.817	0.955	0.571

For a less parsimonious but more easily interpreted window into the nature of the differential breakoff, we examined the differences in means between subjects who broke off from the treatment and control conditions. The results appear in Table SI-7. For ease of inspection, the table is repeated with the rows sorted by p-value (Table Table SI-8). The variables most predictive of differential breakoff are educational attainment, part-time employment, and marital status. Encouragingly, we see no statistically or substantively significant differences with regard to variables that one would worry are correlated with the potential outcomes or treatment effects, e.g., Jewish religion, contact with Jews, the empathy index, and political scales including partisanship, ideology, and conspiracy beliefs.

Because we found evidence of differential attrition on average, we implemented our preregistered plan for dealing with differential attrition. We used the full set of covariates to predict the probability of treatment, then weighted our estimates by the inverse of the predicted values (Gerber and Green 2012, Chapter 7). These estimates appear in the sections below (Appendix 2.2, Table SI-15 and Appendix 3.2, Table SI-30). As we elaborate there, this has no substantive or statistical effect on our results.

1.3 Balance tests

To test for covariate balance between our observed treatment and control condition, we regressed each of our covariates on a treatment indicator. The difference in means estimates appear on the next page in Table SI-10. No difference-in-means test is statistically significant, despite the expectation that three or four would be by chance. The distribution of t-statistics from these tests is summarized in Table SI-9. It is more compact than would be expected by chance, offering further evidence of balance across conditions.

2 Attitudes

2.1 Tables of plotted estimates

Tables SI-11 contains the estimates plotted in main text Figure 1a, as well as equivalent estimates for the subset of respondents who visited a H/A website during the pre-treatment period. Each estimate was obtained by using OLS to fit  $Y_i = \alpha + \beta z_i + \sum_k \delta_k x_{ki} + \epsilon_i$ , where indexes  $k$  covariates. Covariates were selected by fitting a LASSO regression on the control group with the penalty term (usually denoted as  $\lambda$ ) chosen by cross-validation.

The “Wave 2” columns of Table SI-13 contains the estimates plotted in main text Figure 1b. For comparability, the “Wave 1” column contains the equivalent of Figure 1a among subjects who completed both waves of the survey. Each estimate was obtained using the procedure described in the previous section.

2.2 Weighted estimates

As explained in Appendix 1.2, we found evidence of differential breakoff between the treatment and control groups. Consequently, we applied the weighting procedure recommended by Gerber and Green (2012, Chapter 7). Table SI-30 presents the weighted estimates of the effects on attitudes. The estimates are close to the point estimates presented in the main text, and never do not differ in terms of their statistical significance.

Table SI-15: Immediate effect on attitudes, full sample.

2.4 Effects on component measures

As noted in the main text, hypotheses 4 and 5 were tested using additive indices of multiple measures. Figure SI-1 presents estimates for each component of these indices.

In addition to hypotheses 1 through 5, we specified one research question based on the survey data that had no clear directional expectations: that the treatment might affect self-reported contact with Jews. Table SI-20 presents the results.

2.5 Heterogeneous effects

We looked for evidence of treatment effect heterogeneity by interacting treatment assignment with a preregistered set of covariates (Tables SI-21 to SI-27). We did so with and without covariate adjustment. Out of the 48 total interaction coefficients, three were statistically significant at the  $p < 0.05$  level, two-tailed. This provides no statistical evidence of heterogeneous effects according to any of the covariates.

2.6 Open-ended responses

In response to a reviewer, we conducted an exploratory analysis of the responses to the open-ended prompts. First, subjects were asked if they knew someone who is Jewish and has experienced anti-semitism; if yes, they were asked to reflect on it, and if no, they were asked to imagine it. The average response was 13 words long and the median was 9. Figure SI-2 plots the distribution of word counts.

Second, after the treatment video, subjects were asked to describe a time when they had been targeted for something that made them different from other people. The average response was 29 words long and the median was 20. Figure SI-3 plots the distribution of word counts.

While the average response was short, the content of the responses as noted below gives us confidence that participants took the task seriously and the content was responsive. Only a very small number of participants refused to provide answers to either of the open ended reflection exercises.

When given an opportunity prior to viewing the student's story to reflect on experiences of anti-semitism, just over 30 percent of participants said yes they did know someone who was Jewish and experienced antisemitism. Asked to describe the experience, participants mentioned family members who had experienced the Holocaust; their own and their friends experiences with name calling, slurs and verbal harassment; experiences with antisemitic stereotypes and tropes; experiences with individuals minimizing or denying the Holocaust; vandalism at synagogues; physical altercations; and examples of differential treatment. Some of those who said they knew someone who experienced antisemitism did not provide a description (about 13 percent) – these participants reported that the story was not theirs to share, that they did not have the details and in a small number of cases simply said “no” or N/A in response to the prompt.

Those who did not know someone that had experienced antisemitism (just under 70 percent of participants) were asked to describe what they thought it would be like to be Jewish and experience antisemitism. Of these, one fifth said they did not know or were unsure what it would be like. Those who did imagine this often used just several words to emphasize how negative the experience would feel (e.g., “unpleasant and frightening”; “bad”; “enraging”; “hurtful”; “embarrassing”; “painful”; “horrible”; “frustrating”; “sad”; “not good”; “it would anger and frighten me”) while others elaborated on these same themes (e.g., “It would probably be terrifying and frustrating. I’d be afraid for my family. I would be watching my back and not go outside”; “I imagine it would be like living in a world where you don’t feel welcome or safe. I imagine it would be lonely and at times terrifying filled with insecurities and sense of doom. I also imagine self loathing and overwhelming sadness and depression would be a part of practically every moment of everyday but a strong desire for justice and fairness would probably also be a huge part of my daily motivation to continue to move forward”). Still others tended to answer by analogizing this to the experience of other minority groups (e.g., “I don’t know what it would be like to be Jewish and experience anti-Semitism, but I do know what it is like to be black and experience racism. The feelings might be similar”).

A key component of the analogic perspective-taking intervention is having participants reflect on their own experience following exposure to the video of the student conveying his experience with antisemitism. Participants were asked to “think about a time when you felt like you were being targeted for something that makes you different from others” – or to think of a time when it may have happened to a friend or family member – and explain how they felt. As noted, the average response was 29 words, median 20 words. Responses included examples of and reactions to feeling targeted, discriminated against, mistreated or mocked for personal characteristics including religion, race, ethnicity, gender, sexual orientation and political beliefs. Examples focused on weight and appearance were also common. Participants describe experiences faced by themselves or family members, including experiences with discrimination or teasing from their childhood. A small number of individuals highlighted experiences where they were made to feel different for conservative political beliefs or being white. While some responses described specific examples, others simply noted how it made them feel (e.g., “I felt unsafe, singled-out, vulnerable, and upset”; “It made me very angry”). A range of emotions were described, including anger, disgust, frustration, sadness, despair, fear and anxiety. Indeed, feelings of vulnerability and fears about safety are present in many comments. Just under 20 percent stated they could not remember a time when they or a family member was treated this way. A very small number of respondents did not provide any response or one that could be readily characterized (2 percent).

Some examples of responses to this prompt include:

- “I feel I have been targeted for being a woman. I have been spoken down to by men, especially when they are talking about cars or engines and such”

- “As a Hispanic, I have been fortunate to have experience only one or two instances of being treated different. On one occasion I felt disappointed because the words came from a child in the presence of his mother. Obviously, the child was mimicking words and behavior they had seen, probably from their parents”
- “I used to be made fun of all the time when I was young for being Chinese. I grew up in a white suburban neighborhood. There were only 3 Far East Asian people in the entire elementary school. I felt awful whenever people made fun of me. I had very low self esteem as a result.”
- “I was bullied pretty heavily in middle school because other kids thought I was gay. I was struggling a lot with my sexuality and gender identity at that time, and the things people said to me, losing friends, and seeing other kids whisper and laugh with each other made it much harder to come to terms with who I am.”
- “I am a black person, raised in the South, so being targeted for that fact has been a part of my life and it made me feel like crap and sad and angry. I live in the United States, so of course it has happened to my friends and family.”
- “I felt really frightened and humiliated, but more than anything I was angry. A really deep anger because they made me feel like less than what I was, less of a human.”
- “Because I’m fat and overweight people make fun of me and treat me as a lesser person because I’m heavy. I remember being in high school and I was heavy and they used to say I needed a bra and they thought it was a girl instead of a guy all kinds of crap.”
- “It generates fear. In my case it’s being in the closet trans and hearing anti-trans comments. It happens all the time. People are stupid and/or ignorant. I am angry and sad as well.”
- “I felt unfairly targeted for being different and was sad and angry about it.”
- “It feels awful to feel ”other”. To feel excluded because of who you are and things you cannot change.”
- “I felt hurt and alienated in the community I was in. I felt like it was unfair and unnecessary that people should just mind their own business and let others just live their lives in peace. It makes me angry when others think they have the right to disrespect anyone for just being themselves and living as they see fit, as long as no one is hurting anyone else.”
- “I felt unsafe. I didn’t know who to trust and who to be afraid of. I was angry and confused that I was a target for something that I felt was not harmful to others I knew or interacted with”

3 Browsing Behavior

3.1 Tables of plotted estimates

Tables SI-28 and SI-29 display the estimated effects on browsing behavior that are plotted in main text Figure 2, as well as for H/A sites not explicitly flagged as antisemitic. Estimates include pre-treatment covariates (control variables) selected by fitting a LASSO on the control group, with the penalty selected by five-fold cross-validation.

3.2 Weighted estimates

As explained in Appendix 1.2, we found evidence of differential breakoff between the treatment and control groups. Consequently, we applied the weighting procedure recommended by Gerber and Green (2012, Chapter 7). Table SI-30 presents the weighted estimates of the effect on browsing behavior. The estimates are close to the point estimates presented in the main text, and never do not differ in terms of their statistical significance.

3.4 Dropping an outlier

One subject in the control group contributed about half of the visits to antisemitic sites in our sample. Concerned that such a significant outlier could have driven the results, we conducted an exploratory analysis in which we excluded this subject and recalculated our estimates from Tables SI-28 and SI-29. The resulting estimates appear in Tables SI-33 and SI-34. The estimates are close to the same, with a slight attenuation toward zero that does not affect any estimate's statistical significance.

3.5 Time trends

Figures SI-4 and SI-5 contain daily and weekly estimates of the treatment's effect on browsing behavior. We do not find any evidence of a time trend.

3.6 Heterogeneous effects

Tables SI-35 through SI-58 test for heterogeneous effects on browsing behavior according to our pre-registered list of pre-treatment covariates. Each trio of tables tests for heterogeneous effects on our three browsing variables (any visit, logged number of visits, logged time spent) by the same covariate. All covariates are scaled to range from 0 to 1.

With respect to the survey-measured covariates (cognitive reflection, empathy, conspiratorial beliefs, political knowledge, and contact with Jews), we find little evidence of heterogeneity. Out of 36 interaction coefficients, two are statistically significant. The fact that both of these instances are covariate-adjusted estimates for heterogeneity by conspiratorial beliefs may be worth investigating in future research.

With respect to pre-treatment browsing behavior, the results suggest that the overall effects we report in the main text are heavily driven by those who visited H/A sites pre-treatment. The effects on those who did not visit H/A sites pre-treatment (the “treatment” row) are consistently negative but never statistically significant.

3.7 Relationship between browsing and attitudes

In response to a reader inquiry, we conducted an exploratory analysis of the relationship between pre-treatment browsing behavior and our attitudinal outcome measures. In Table SI-59, the “Attitude” column lists an attitudinal measure and the “Browsing” column lists a measure of antisemitic site visits (any visit, number of visits, time spent). The “Difference” column presents the predicted difference between subjects with no antisemitic browsing and the subject with the maximum amount of antisemitic browsing, based on a linear regression.

We find no evidence of differences in discrimination perceptions, and at least some evidence of differences with respect to feelings, policy solutions, and stereotypes. All of the differences are in the expected directions. Although we are hesitant to read too much into an exploratory analysis, we would tentatively describe antisemitic site visitors as “aware but unconcerned”: they perceive roughly equal amounts of discrimination but cooler feelings, engage in more stereotyping, and profess less support for policy solutions.

3.8 Identification of H/A websites

We sought to identify websites and social media accounts that contain hateful, bigoted, discriminatory, and/or otherwise highly abusive content directed at groups of people. This includes the comments found on the website or in replies to posts. The URLs range from neo-Nazi and white supremacist sites to those among the so-called "alt lite" (ADL, nd) and some considered part of the "intellectual dark web" (Weiss, 2018). We do not claim that any given website contains entirely, or even primarily, hateful content (although a number do), but rather, that someone spending much time on one of these sites would be likely to be exposed to hateful, discriminatory, bigoted, and/or highly abusive content and/or comments directed at groups of people. Thus, some of the individuals or organizations found on our list might not directly espouse hateful or bigoted views, but if they regularly provide space (e.g., in interviews, guest posts, etc.) for those who do espouse such views, their site/account is eligible for our list. Our approach is agnostic to ideology. However, as recent research has consistently shown (Benkler, Faris, Roberts, 2018; Freelon, Marwick, & Kreiss, 2020; Marwick & Lewis, 2017), the preponderance of hateful, bigoted, and/or highly abusive content online in recent years is associated with the political right.

We seeded our list of URLs by beginning with reports from the Southern Poverty Law Center and the Anti-Defamation League that identified extremist organizations and individuals and then used Google searches conducted in "incognito" or "private" mode to identify relevant websites and social media accounts and channels, including podcasts available via digital services such as iTunes, Spotify, and Soundcloud. For each organization and individual we searched for accounts and channels on Bitchute, Dlive, Facebook, Gab, Parler, Telegram, Twitter, VK, and YouTube, as well as subreddits. We also read through Wikipedia pages to see if the individual in question was associated with any organizations not named in the initial report or, similarly, if any additional individuals were associated with the organization in question. We then used a snowball approach, examining each website, social media account, or channel for new links and names and evaluated each in turn to assess whether it met the criteria described above.

Content on the sites, accounts, and channels on this list target a range of groups for bigotry. Some, for example, focus on maligning LGBTQ+ individuals, while others are Islamophobic or anti-immigrant. Still others—especially the white nationalist and white supremacist sites—target a wide range of groups and communities. However, because our initial project addressed antisemitism, we prioritized identifying antisemitic content, and the list therefore is heavily weighted toward URLs with such content. We ended our collection when more than 70 percent of the links found on 20 consecutive sites, accounts, and channels hosting antisemitic content were already part of our list.

The vast majority of sites, accounts, and channels are US-centric. We only included URLs based outside of the US if they at least partially spoke to a US audience or addressed issues in the United States.

3.9 List of H/A websites

The following table lists the most-visited antisemitic sites during the pre-treatment period. Recall that some domains that are not obviously antisemitic can be used to view antisemitic content; for example, we extracted searches for antisemitic content undertaken on major search engines. The 4chan visits were primarily contributed by the respondent we describe above as an outlier; results hold excluding this respondent (Appendix 3.4).

4 Design Information

4.1 Ethics Details

Deception: No deception was used in this study.

Consent: Participants provided informed consent before participating in each wave and before sharing their browsing data with Pulse.

Compensation: Participants were compensated via YouGov's point system; points can be converted to cash. Pulse participants receive 3,000 points for each month they share their data, with additional bonuses possible. Typical YouGov surveys reward participants with 500-1,000 points.

Other issues: Pulse participants consent to provide their web browsing data, which can be personally identifying and/or contain sensitive information about the participants. Accordingly, we excluded the raw browsing data from the replication file. The JEPS editorial team verified that our cleaned files can be produced from the raw data. For more details, please see readme.txt in the replication file.

4.2 CONSORT diagram

The following CONSORT diagram illustrates the research design.

4.3 Questionnaire

The following pages include the full text of the wave 1 survey. Wave 2 included all of the outcome batteries except emotional state, as well as the contact with Jews question.

Covariates

Cognitive reflection

[crt_1] A bat and a ball cost $1.10 in total. The bat costs $1.00 more than the ball. How much does the ball cost, in cents?

[Text box]

[crt_2] If it takes 5 machines 5 minutes to make 5 widgets, how long would it take 100 machines to make 100 widgets, in minutes?

[Text box]

[crt_3] In a lake, there is a patch of lily pads. Every day, the patch doubles in size. If it takes 48 days for the patch to cover the entire lake, how long would it take for the patch to cover half of the lake, in days?

[Text box]

Empathy / perspective taking

---

[Use a GRID, rows=randomize order of the two statements, column=fixed response options; column labeled with the number ranging 1-5 with end points labeled where 1 is "does not describe me very well" and 5 is "describes me very well"]

The following statements inquire about your thoughts and feelings in a variety of situations. For each item, indicate how well it describes you.

[perspec1] I sometimes find it difficult to see things from the "other guy's" point of view.

[perspec2] Before criticizing somebody, I try to imagine how I would feel if I were in their place.

1 does not describe me very well

5 describes me very well

Generic conspiracy beliefs

[Use GRID, rows are conspiracy statements, columns response options; row=randomized, column=fixed]

Please indicate the degree to which each statement is likely to be true.

[conspir_murder] The government is involved in the murder of innocent citizens and/or well-known public figures, and keeps this a secret.

[conspir_smallGroup ] Certain significant events have been the result of the activity of a small group who secretly manipulate world events.

[conspir_unknows ] The power held by heads of state is second to that of small unknown groups who really control world politics.

- <1> Definitely false
- <2> Probably false
- <3> Not sure
- <4> Probably true
- <5> Definitely true

Trolling battery

[smoke] At what age did you first smoke a cigarette?

- [Text box]
- I have never smoked a cigarette

[height] What is your height?

[Text boxes: _____ feet, _____ inches]

[sleep] How many hours of sleep do you usually get per night?

[Text box]

[limb] Have you used an artificial hand, arm, leg or foot for the past 12 months or more?

- <1> yes
- <2> no

Political knowledge

Next are some questions to help us see how much information about politics gets out to the public. Please answer these questions on your own, without asking anyone or looking up the answers. Many people don't know the answers to these questions. If you do not know the answer to any question, do not worry. Just select your best guess and go to the next question. There is a limit of 30 seconds per question.

Treatment

Analogic perspective-taking exercise

(These are only displayed to those in the video treatment)

Do you know anyone who is Jewish and experienced anti-Semitism?

Yes/no

[if yes] In just a few sentences, can you describe the experience of that person?

[if no] In just a few sentences, what do you think it would be like to be Jewish and experience anti-Semitism?

[text box]

Please watch the following video with the sound on.

[show video]

Thank you for watching this video.

We'd now like you to think about a time when you felt like you were being targeted for something that makes you different from others. In just a few sentences, can you explain how you felt?

If you can't think of a time when this happened to you, can you think about a time when this may have happened to a friend or family member?

[text box]

Thank you for sharing your perspective. We take your experience seriously. We will read your response after you complete the survey.

We hope you will keep Max's story in mind, especially when you are on the Internet.

Post-Video Distractor

(These are only displayed to those in the video treatment)

[Would like the following questions to have response options displayed as scale from 1 – 5 where 1 and 5 have labeled end points labeled as noted with response options]

How would you rate your enjoyment of the video you just watched, on a scale of 1 to 5, with 1 being no enjoyment and 5 being the most enjoyment?

- 1 did not enjoy the video

- 5 High quality

Outcomes

The rest of the questions are all displayed to all participants.

Emotional State

---

[Use GRID, rows are emotion description, columns response option; row=randomize, column=fixed]

Next, we are interested in how you are feeling. To what extent would you say you feel the following emotions right now?

Angry
Disgusted
Sympathetic
Fearful
Hopeful

<1> Not at all
<2> A little
<3> Some
<4> A lot

NOTE: We would like the rest of the post treatment outcome questions after the emotion state items to be randomized by block (BLOCK 1=group affect and discrimination, BLOCK 2=policy items and BLOCK 3=stereotype beliefs

Group Affect Feeling thermometer

[Use feeling thermometer widget, please randomize the order of presentation of group FT]

We'd like to get your feelings toward a number of groups on a "feeling thermometer." A rating of zero degrees means you feel as cold and negative as possible. A rating of 100 degrees means you feel as warm and positive as possible. You would rate the group at 50 degrees if you don't feel particularly positive or negative toward the group.)

- Jews
- Christians
- Muslims
- Blacks
- Whites
- Asians
- Hispanics
- Immigrants
- Big business

- Labor unions

Perceptions of the problem: discrimination

[Use GRID where rows are groups, column response option; row=randomize, columns=fixed]

Beliefs: Stereotypes

[Use GRID statements as rows, columns as response options, rows=randomize and columns=fixed]

Here are a series of statements, some of them you may think are true, others you may think are false. Please tell us which of the following statements you think are probably true and which ones you think are probably false.

- Jews have too much control and influence on Wall Street
- Jews have too much power in international financial markets
- Jews have too much power in the United States today
- Jews have too much control over global affairs
- The movie and television industries are pretty much run by Jews.
- Jews still talk too much about what happened to them in the Holocaust.
- Jews want to weaken our national culture by supporting more immigrants coming to our country.
- Jews always like to be the head of things
- Jews are just as honest as other business people
- Jews don't care what happens to anyone but their own kind
- Jewish businessmen are so shrewd that other people do not have a fair chance at competition
- Jews are more willing than others to use shady practices to get what they want
- Jews think they are better than other people

<1> Definitely true

<2> Probably true

<3> Neither true nor false

<4> Probably false

<5> Definitely false

4.4 Compliance with Experimental Reporting Standards

This document follows the reporting standards recommended by the APSA Organized Section on Experimental Research that were published as part of Issue 1(1) of the Journal of Experimental Political Science.

Hypotheses

The hypotheses are specified in the enclosed pre-registration document.

Subjects and context

Participants were recruited by YouGov. Wave 1 was fielded between June 3 and June 13, 2023 (n=2,055); Wave 2 was fielded between June 16 and June 23, 2023 (n=1,232).

Allocation

Participants were randomized by YouGov to either treatment or control conditions with equal probability.

Treatments

The treatment, delivered online, is described in the manuscript. The manuscript also contains a link to the video. The full text is available in the questionnaire subsection of this appendix. Participants not randomly assigned to the treatment were assigned to a pure control (i.e., they went immediately to outcome questions).

Results

Exact question wording can be found in the questionnaire in the appendix. The pre-registration document, also in this appendix, makes clear which outcomes were pre-registered. A CONSORT-style diagram is also in this appendix.

Statistical analysis

Consistent with these standards, all estimates presented are ITT; we do not account for non-compliance with the treatment. However, we do investigate differential attrition at length, with results available in this appendix.

Other information

This research was approved by the George Washington University IRB (#NCR213417). This research was supported by the John S. and James L. Knight Foundation through a grant to the Institute for Data, Democracy & Politics at The George Washington University. The Knight Foundation played no role in the conceptualization, design, analysis or interpretation of this research. Replication data can be accessed via the Harvard Dataverse, via the URL in the References section of the manuscript.
